Thursday, June 28th BLUESPACE

This movie is one that has been created by one of our own School Alumni - Ian Cheney. He was producer and director of "King Corn", a well known environmental movie concerning the incredible dominance of corn derived products in our food. In his latest effort Ian examines our fraught relationship with our home world by delving into the sci-fi speculation of "terraforming," or making another planet Earth-like, by altering its atmosphere. He calls on a fanciful brain trust to process this big idea: a desert camp of Mars hopefuls; a bevy of novelists; Hurricane Sandy survivors; a Brooklyn canoe club. Bluespace makes a strong case for taking better care of our water-rich planet so that future generations won't have to resort to interplanetary colonization.

Wednesday, July 11th CHESHIRE, OHIO, AN AMERICAN COAL STORY

A gun toting 83-year old woman refuses to sell her house to the power plant next door. But despite her refusal, the plant has moved ahead with their 20 million dollar deal to buy out most of Cheshire and bulldoze all the homes. What happened in this Ohio River town overrun by one of the largest coal-fired power plants in the world? A story of money, power and the increasingly difficult choices we face surrounding coal and the environment, Cheshire, Ohio makes us think twice about home.

Thursday, August 2nd ONE BIG HOME

Gentrification comes in many forms. On the tiny island of Martha's Vineyard, where presidents and celebrities vacation, trophy homes threaten to destroy the island's unique character. Twelve years in the making, One Big Home follows one carpenter's journey to understand the trend toward giant houses. When he feels complicit in wrecking the place he calls home, he takes off his tool belt and picks up a camera.
