Teaching-Related Field Study

Since its founding F&ES has been dedicated to field work. The Industrial Environmental Management Program, in turn, has actively organized class field work and projects to support the teaching program. Over 200 industrial ecology students have completed field study projects in New Haven, East Coast states, and beyond, including approximately 150 students visiting Puerto Rico or Hawaii over 10 years of study in these two venues. Greening Business Operations had four company field visits per semester and Corporate Environmental Management and Strategy has had one-two visits per year. A one-credit course offered in 2011, 2013, and 2014 has been dedicated to field visits. These have included industrial plants that have produced: electricity from waste and hydrogen fuel cells, helicopters, jet engines, packaging, powdered metals, pharmaceuticals, ultrasonics, food, office supply distribution, and many others.
